This is your invitation to the contemporary glass event of the year: The 42nd Annual International Glass Invitational Award Exhibition at Habatat Galleries. We have worked on making this exhibit a truly unique experience. Each of the 100+ participating artists will offer two very special sculptures as part of the award selection. These 200+ sculptures will be on display along with our inventory of hundreds of works that frankly are just too good not to be shown!

The theme for the 42nd International Glass Invitational is about the evolution of glass as an art material. We asked the artists to look beyond the glass community - where would your work fit in the spectrum of the art world? Where would you place yourself and your work and why? We are looking forward to the artist's responses that will be published in the 42nd International catalogue.

For the home tours this April we will have "The Second Generation", three collectors that have made collecting glass a family tradition. This will include the home of Jim and Sandy Danto, Arnold and Joanne Danto, as well as Corey and Regena Hampson. This will be the first open house for these collections.

Events include a VIP preview of the 42nd International display, an early copy of the 42nd International catalogue, lunches, dinners, parties, a demonstration by Paul Stankard and Martin Janecky, fun and interactive lectures, home tours and a chance to meet over 40 of the finest artist working with glass. The weekend will be kicked off by Habatat's 12th Masterworks Auction that will feature the finest works available on the secondary market including the collection of Barbara and Warren Poole.

The new tours this year include the fun and memorable Motown Museum, the internationally famous Heidelberg project and the heart of Detroit's art scene the Russell Industrial Center where many local artists' work in a collection of mediums. These Detroit Artists were the topic of a Time magazine story discussing how innovative art can change a city.

All these events lead up to the grand opening of the 42nd Glass International Saturday evening. Please review all the events included in the itinerary and RSVP for the event as soon as possible to reserve your participation in all events as room is limited. All of us here at Habatat Galleries are looking forward to seeing you at this fantastic and elaborate International Glass celebration.
